FreePODCAST: Charlie Lee, creator of Litecoin As crypto-adoption grows so too does the issue of misconceptions and myths surrounding cryptocurrencies. One of the most prominent misconceptions is that cryptocurrencies are not fit for day-to-day use due to their volatility. Charlie Lee, creator of Litecoin, talks us through some myths in episode 8 of his 'Crypto Briefing' podcast.

Listen to the podcast here: Charlie Lee currently advises companies such as the mining hardware manufacturer, HashFast and the Litecoin-focused firm, LitePay. He also worked at Google from 2005 to 2013 and is currently the Director of Engineering at Blockstream, a cryptocurrency and blockchain technology company. Charlie Lee: “I’m a second-generation entrepreneur. I see firsthand the challenges that come from not having enough money and not having the skills to get where you need to go. With Litecoin, I wanted to build something that I would use and that would have real value.”

Evolving over the course of its history, Litecoin was first launched as an experimental project by Charlie Lee in 2011 to test the viability of smart contracts. The original CoinDesk article he wrote for the launch of Litecoin in 2011 can be read here. Freezing News's mentions of Litecoin on Twitter and Facebook will help us make more content like this in the future. If you enjoy our work, and want to contribute to keeping it free,
