NetPayCalc Download

This app has been built in WPF using C# and is a windows form app. It has a two tabbed interface, with the left tab having the two columns that you need to fill in (gross salary/hours worked and net income). The Form is kept simple, all the details are managed as uneditable text boxes. You can save the data in-app, as CSV or in a.dbf database. The data can be imported and edited through the main window. I have developed this app out of need, to help my colleague with a side project. I was looking for a small program to help calculate net pay, and this app came out as the easiest solution. The program requires no installation, and can be used in any windows environment and is free.

netPayCalc Features: - Easy to use and understand - Simple application that can calculate your Net salary. - Ability to save the data in-app as CSV or save it to a.dbf database - Import and edit data through the main window Installation: 1. Enter the data 4. Select from the tab interface which is the last window that you should fill 5. Click on the Start option You can exit after saving the data. If you want you can exit from this window and when you click on Start, the application will exit. Commercial use: We have the option to make an official version of this application for commercial use. This version of the application can be bought in the windows store. The price is reasonable but it is only available in the US (in any other location it will be at a higher price). We would want to know about your use of the app to help us to decide on the commercial use price. For more details please send us email to: info@freecalc.info The app is being built using a UWP version of the C# code-base, but we can install the.exe file for windows form compatibility if required. netPayCalc - Apple Store: netPayCalc - Google Play:
