With three upcoming titles, GearHeadz is gearing up to release its line of quality fun and fit branded headwear this year, stay tuned for official announcements! Family Guy (song) "Family Guy" is the tenth episode of the eighth season of the animated comedy series Family Guy. It originally aired on the Fox network in the United States on March 5, 2007. In the episode, Stewie is sent to a family counseling session with Peter, Lois, and Meg, after showing his feelings about Chris. The episode received mixed reviews from critics and was watched by 9.23 million viewers. Plot While at work, Brian is disappointed at being stuck in a meeting with Lois and goes outside to watch for Chris's return. While watching, he befriends a cat, who eventually reveals itself to be Chris. He discovers that Chris is at the house of the family he married for the night. He sneaks in, scares Meg, Lois, and Peter, and even gets a hug from Chris. Meanwhile, Stewie is sent to a family counseling session with his family. He goes into an "anxiety attack" while there. The next day, after Peter gets his teddy bear, Lois notices a cut on his arm and goes to treat him at the hospital. Stewie, however, is against this and has his family take him to the doctor. They take him there, but the doctor declares that he has a severe case of angst (an imaginary psychological disorder that affects males who wish for intimacy or familial companionship) and must undergo intensive counseling in order to become a well-adjusted member of society. After Lois calls him again, Chris goes to the house and meets Lois and Peter in the kitchen. He offers to take them to dinner, but Lois refuses. Stewie, upon hearing this, goes to another doctor, and is told that he will be fine in a few weeks. A few weeks later, Stewie goes to meet his family and befriends with them. Chris then tells Lois that he's having an affair with Stewie's mother. When Chris confesses his intentions to Lois, Peter beats him. Chris tries to talk to his family, but he realizes that he could not become part of their family. He then begins to cry, while Stew

Featured Artists Waves. Alex and Jordan first saw one another on a crowded train platform during the summer before their sophomore year of college, when Waves played The Inbetweeners concert at Memorial Stadium in a nearby town. Already in the midst of a cat and dog friendship, Alex and Jordan spent all of their time together that night walking the landscape outside the stadium, seeing songs from different artists on the pods that hung at stilt height all around the perimeter. “We made that around our date, like, ‘Oh, this is how you’d be walking if you were walking around the stadium on a train,’” Jordan said. Jordan recommended the song “Rise Up” by The Black Eyed Peas, and Alex quickly tweeted back that it was his favorite song. Almost immediately the two connected online, messaging for hours about everything from their favorite music artists to their general hopes and aspirations for the fall. This fed their passion to work together. By the start of the summer before the duo’s junior year at University of Pittsburgh, Waves had progressed from a one-song project by Jordan to a two-song project. They performed their first official show at a local restaurant. “How to describe what we had created? It was just something that kind of touched my heart,” Jordan said. “I didn’t really realize it would do that for someone else, but it does.” Though Waves is not the first musical collaboration between Alex and Jordan, their work and musical tastes go beyond the realm of songs. Jordan is a huge sports fan. Their first two meetings were of the game type. Of their many sessions, the duo have made pizza pizza-night medleys, Phish covers and a song that mashes David Bowie and Morgan Freeman together. “We can’t say we’re musicians. We’re avid music fans,” Jordan said. “For us, it’s that much more of a coincidence.” After a day and a half of practice and some time to think about the alternate history their song would follow, Waves and several members of the local community invited them to open for A Great Big World at the Riverfest venue last weekend. Great Big World performed three songs, including a cover of “Rise Up” with Alexander and the band. “Being able to have a song

The year is 2124 and a strange species of cybernetic arachnids known as "Dreadnoughts" have completely taken over Earth. For the first time in human history, people are no longer afraid of the dark; instead they live under the constant fear of the Dreadnoughts. The remnants of society live as if this is a permanent state of affairs. UNHATED~! The story goes back on a now deserted future Earth in the year 2124, 5 years after the final destruction of the last Dreadnought colony. A once peaceful existence has been reclaimed by the insects for their own purposes and now humanity is a shadow of its former self. Like the Dreadnought's, the human genome is being altered through the use of Bio-Augmentation technologies. These advancements in science and technology will change the fabric of the world as we know it. In this tale of two worlds, you play as a human that has been augmented with nanos, and your task is to try to reclaim some freedom from a world full of Dreadnoughts. 100 levels of nightmare-inducing 2D, side-scrolling insect killing action Addictive game play with updated graphics A multitude of weapons and armors to help you survive the onslaught of the huge insects More than 75 Achievements A score-saving time attack mode Includes:-The Futuristic Adventure - Docking with the Dreadnought is the next logical step in your evolution. Your human mind exists, but in turn, your being is made of a strange matter known as 'plasma.' The Dreadnought sees you as only a creation of their own. When you visit one of your long forgotten ships, you might find a critical item...a vital piece of technology that could make the difference in your struggle. Because the Dreadnought is indifferent to your desire for freedom, it will let you take it. Maybe not willingly. The first part of Docking at the Dreadnought is set on your ship, where you can explore your dilapidated vessel and build up your arsenal. You'll need to decide what new inventions you will be able to carry with you and as you practice with a few of the enemies that come with the game, you'll uncover a few hidden secrets of the past. How the Dreadnought found you, why they are hunting you, and what they want will lead you to a second section of
