Arachnoid metastasis, a type of extraneuronal metastasis, is one of the most common causes of intraparenchymal brain metastasis. A 70-year-old man presented with isolated right-sided sensory-motor hemiparesis. A preoperative brain MRI revealed an enhancing, expansive lesion in the right lateral subarachnoid space. The lesion was completely resected, and the histological diagnosis was metastatic adenocarcinoma. A review of the literature found 34 previously reported cases of arachnoid metastasis, most of them being breast cancer. We found only 1 other case with arachnoid metastasis from an unknown primary site, and 7 cases in which no primary lesion could be identified. Metastatic disease should be suspected in patients with a known malignancy, particularly in the presence of isolated arachnoid metastasis.

What's new:

Redshift VR is an action/shoot-'em-up videogame developed and published by Singapore-based indie studio, Redshift Game Studios. The game is isometric and allows the player to move "on foot" and fight virtual opponents while blasting through a futuristic dystopia. Its gameplay engine was built with Unreal Engine 4. Redshift VR was funded via Kickstarter, and was described by its creators as a combination of two of their most successful titles on kickstarter - Seg-Zero (the creators' previous indie project which was funded on kickstarter) and Superbrothers: Sword & Sworcery EP. Most of the game's characters and mechanics were based directly on the impression of Redshift Game Studios' previous real-life game projects by them. The game's foundation of gameplay mechanics were established during its development process, while the game's distinct characters, sounds, and stylish graphics were conceived by the creators Redshift Game Studios. The game's two worlds and virtual on-foot levels have been described by Redshift Game Studios to be inspired by futuristic science fiction games like Resident Evil 4 and Blade Runner. Their development team have indicated though that players of Redshift VR will not be restricted to the retro-style gameplay and visuals of the game's on-foot levels. The game's soundtrack has mostly been composed by team member and sound designer Sup-A-D-I-Oid while the game's visual style is largely based on the aesthetics of the team's previous game, Seg-Zero. Gameplay Gameplay is both isometric and 2.5D in nature. The player, while engaged with a 3D virtual environment, is furnished with a left and right set of "laser guns." When their players remain still and when fighting/attacking enemies in its environment, Redshift VR allows you to control the player's movement with a combination of movement of their player character's top and bottom halves of the screen. This moves enables the player to perform "on-foot" moves. The player uses the left and right laser guns to attack enemies and complete certain on-foot moves. The lasers are able to be controlled via the game's free aiming system which enables player's reticle to be moved and fired via control of their player character's controller.

Redshift VR is controlled by a joystick with a trigger as well as a left and right button. The buttons are used for player's player character's inventory and power-ups, while the joystick is used to move their reticle across their
