I spend a lot of money on my keezers, but I'm only using them a handful of times a year and I will be brewing only with authentic American Pale Ale (APA) yeast for the most part. As a whole, would anyone agree that all of the other yeast labeled yeast strains aren't as good as the APA yeast? I think they are more reliable, but I also think this is a bit like the author said " your story sucks.". I have to agree with the first poster in that the whole thing is a bit of a waste. I'm not sure why we're talking about efficiency when there are already so many dedicated websites devoted to talking about the very same things. It seems like the author has taken some sort of personal interest and I can see why, but he's a bit self-absorbed and a little self-righteous. For people who are taking interest in the hobby are limited by money and you're only going to get a piece of the whole or nothing at all. That's something you need to get over with. The rest of us aren't going to listen. Good luck, though. I just might be biased but I don't think those other 2 yeasts are any better than the AB or US-05. Having said that, I do have an interesting thing to add. My mother in law was thinking of purchasing a new kegerator after her previous one died. My wife and I talked her out of it and suggested that she buy a used kegerator that could double as a washer/
