"To be able to go out and be a little bit more of a leader on the field, I had some things I wanted to take away from my time here." He's enjoyed a productive final season, with 11 tackles and a sack in the Outback Bowl win over Wisconsin. "I think the biggest thing that I've been able to take away from here is just to have fun with my teammates and enjoy the game and not think about all the hard work," Cox said. "Just go out there and have fun and don't be so serious about the game because you can't be."Splenectomy-induced immunomodulation in patients with immune thrombocytopenia: a case-matched study. Immune thrombocytopenia (ITP) is a disease with an autoimmune pathogenesis. We have previously documented splenectomy-induced immunomodulation in ITP. To examine the effects of splenectomy on the immune response in ITP and to identify patients whose condition may require immunomodulation prior to splenectomy, patients with newly diagnosed ITP and matched controls were evaluated. Pre-splenectomy, the ITP patients had significantly lower concentrations of T- and B-cell subsets, as well as impaired PHA-induced, but not pokeweed mitogen-induced, blastogenesis. Post-splenectomy, the T-cell subset concentrations increased and responses to mitogen and antigen re-appeared in patients, particularly when plasma immunosuppressant levels were low. ITP patients with higher post-splenectomy immunosuppressant levels had a greater degree of immunomodulation, but these patients had the lowest responses pre-splenectomy. These data suggest that immunomodulation might be crucial in maintaining remission and possibly in the absence of any treatment. In conclusion, the assessment of immunoresponsiveness may provide information on the suitability for splenectomy in ITP and/or other autoimmune disorders.Swimming at the 2016 Summer Olympics – Women's 100 metre freestyle The women
