Ugx Driver For Sony Vaio Vgn-sz18gp !!EXCLUSIVE!!

I have an issue with my Vaio laptop, the wireless is not working in Ubuntu 10.04, when it worked fine in Windows 7. I have tried the solutions I found in other questions and none work for me, wireless light keeps lit when I boot, and it does not turn off when I reboot it. I can't even find a driver for this model!! I would greatly appreciate any help someone could give me on this and any other issues I may have with this laptop.. Thanks! can you give me some help? I have a vaio VGN-SZ130, and I am trying to get it to work again. I fixed the power issue, but now the vaio gets stuck on the second screen. if I press the power off button it shuts down fine, but if I try to restart it or go into bios, it just sits there and does nothing. Can someone help? I just got a Sony VAIO laptop, and I've got the 'ugx' window (for 'service manual?') open, and I've searched for a driver to install. I don't even know what the driver is for yet, but I tried opening it anyway. When I opened it, it opened like a normal drive, and I just clicked on the button that said 'Continue' and selected the desired device, then it went right back to the 'ugx' screen and said that the driver was unavailable, and it suggested that I search the manufacturer for the driver. I think it's an American driver. I just got the laptop and I can't find any local Sony store or anything. I've searched the manufacturer website, but there were no drivers listed. Thanks for any help! Anyways, I have a VGN-CR13, and I have downloaded the VGN-SZ18GP driver. Now, the problem is that it does not recognize the video card. it says it is a 32mb vid card and I downloaded the 64mb one. I have tried looking through the device manager, and it does not seem to find the card? The only other thing, is that my laptop has a bluetooth module, which I have not tried. Does anyone have any suggestions, I have searched but can not find anything
