WeVideo is a web-based Windows Movie Maker alternative you can get for free. We like WeVideo for its social-media-friendly templates in very specific categories such as How-To Makeup, Unboxing, Livestream Coming Soon, and Just Sold. It also comes with a variety of text templates and animated titles. WeVideos customizable templates are perfect for beginners and busy influencers. Adobe Premiere Pro and Media Encoder are the essentials for seasoned editors who want to create a professional quality movie. There are three main tools you can apply to your videos. The first is the color grade, and we found it easy to use. You'll need to know your editing software's color-correction controls to get the best possible results. Premiere Pro's grading tools are optimized for video, so you'll have a natural result. The new version has more bugs fixed. For instance, the upgrading window could disappear if users switch to other apps during the upgrading process. Users were unable to find the upgrading window when they try to get back until the upgrade process is complete. Also, black screen flashes always appear when users switch between animations and video/image clips on the timeline. In MiniTool MovieMaker 5.0, all these bugs have been successfully fixed. WeVideo is a good Windows Movie Maker alternative, but only if you are willing to pay. While we like the online program for content creators, the free version is unrealistic for any serious influencers or YouTubers. It only allows 5 minutes of exported content per month, and the max resolution is 480p. Key features like branding assets and direct upload to YouTube are saved for their pricey Professional or Business plans. Professional content creators on a budget should try Lightroom or Avid Media Composer First. 5ec8ef588b
