When you begin to design you can add commonly used fonts from the built-in library. After you've designed a form, you can generate a PDF or a Microsoft Word and save them in the form's file format. These forms are then ready for OMR processing. There are two ways in which you can go about generating these forms: with a desktop OMR software or a web-based OMR software. Some of the benefits of choosing to use a web-based OMR Software are the versatility and functionality that this type of software offers. It is easy to design forms from a web-based OMR Software as opposed to using a desktop software. Other benefits include that one does not have to download and install an app on their personal computer. Also, because of this, the internet service provider is less prone to viruses and spyware. Further, it is possible to share one's forms with others, with everyone in one's OMR Software community. OMR Software is the most popular organization pattern management system for Enterprise Resource Planning. It has been used since 1984 by thousands of organizations from small (30 employees or less) to large (e.g., over 5000 employees), and everything in between to great success. OMR Software is designed to be configurable and scalable so that users can control the style and behavior of their forms programmatically. From organizing and flagging data in a form to implementing validation and error messages, OMR Software has the tools for your organization to quickly process OMR forms. Form control objects are an important feature of OMR Software. These objects implement specific rules and controls regarding how the data is entered and stored in the form.
