Dacris Benchmarks is a reliable software solution for testing the overall performance of your computer in order to determine the optimal settings for it. It does so by running a series of tests to determine the maximum stress factor of your computer. All your hardware is tested, as you can check the performance of your processor, RAM and cache memory, 2D video card, 3D rendering performance, as well as additional tests for other components. In addition, the application can generate a detailed report about your computer's overall performance, which also includes the best frame rate that your computer can achieve while running 3D games. These reports can be exported to several formats, such as HTML, CSV or XML. Dacris Benchmarks can be used to monitor RAM and CPU stability in order to maintain your computer to optimal settings. This way, you will be notified whenever your computer is being stressed by applications that have a lot of hardware requirements in order to run. Furthermore, your computer will be rated, based on the stress tests previously ran. This helps you compare your computer to others, in order to determine which components run smoothly and which could use an upgrade.
