For the record, no, I have not experienced any issues with this update. I have also not seen any technical glitches or bugs with this version. Overall, Adobe has done an excellent job maintaining the quality of their software. Some Adobe Elements users complained that the switch to the cloud-based service caused loss of disc space, and this is no less true for this release. If you want to create and edit images in this program, you'll need to sync files to the cloud using Adobe Photoshop Touch 2018. The Masking feature allows you to apply patterns, textures, and effects to a layer or image using the tool's live preview. You also can add multiple instances of the same pattern or texture to layer or image-based selections. This is useful when you want, for example, to apply patterns creatively, or to stack one set of rules, such as best results, upon another set, such as the ones that appear on label-making software. What It Does: Draws a line that you specify with the Length tool. You can then adjust the placement of this line by using the Pen tool. You can also make the line thicker by using the Brush tool. The Pinch tool allows you to zoom both the document and the selection window together. This makes it easy to resize layers as needed. Just pinch together two fingers and expand or contract the window—the zoom will be synchronized. The Colorize feature inverts areas that are lighter than the rest of the image; that is, it takes the higher-contrast areas of your image and makes them darker and the lower-contrast areas brighter. It's useful for quickly correcting the luminosity of a color that was incorrectly displayed by your camera. On a finished image, however, you're better off working with the Levels setting. What It Does: Selects the starting point for the next selection. Unlike the regular selection tool, it can select only lines that are parallel to the axis of an edge or face. (That's not to say you can't select just about any object—you can select anything at all, including nonrectangular objects. e3d0a04c9c
